The Discharges at Carnegie's Lawrenceville Mills Merely

CAUSED BY MECHANICAL CHANGES.

The Mining Institute to Discuss Interest#### ing Subjects Here. ODDS AND ENDS PROM LABOR CIRCLES

Nearly 200 men were discharged from Carnegie's Twenty-ninth street and Thirtythird street mills on Saturday, and the impression being given out that more dis-charges would follow, exaggerated statements were circulated in the locality vesterday, causing consternation among business men and the people generally. The story that gained the greatest circu-lation and caused the most apprehension was that the Carnegies were preparing to move their mills to Duquesne, where they recently purchased a large tract of land. Another story was that General Manager Dillon, who recently assumed control of the mills, had started in to cut down expenses, and to remove every man who was not a Catholic. An investigation of the matter shows that the men discharged are only laborers and machinists who have been employed since last August on the work of changing the puddling furnaces from gas to coal burners, and in the erection of a series of ten coal gas producers for the heating furnaces. This work is about completed and the men were not needed any longer. Altogether 193 men were discharged, 150 from the Thirty-third street and 43 from the Twenty-inthninth street mill. A few more will be dis-charged in a short time.

BOAT BUILDING IN PITTSBURG.

Whalebacks Could Be Commenced Here and Finished on the Way Down.

Referring to the fact that ironclads were built here for the Government during the war of the Rebellion, Mr. Graham, of Forest Grove, asks what is to prevent the building of whalebacks. Mr. Graham states that not much of a shipyard would be needed, as after the lower portion of the barge had been built the works necessary to complete can be placed on the barge, and she can be finished as she floats to the Gulf. In this way, also, could be saved the cost of freight on the lumber from the West to this city. It could be conveniently stored along the lower Ohio and Mississippi and taken the lower Ohio and Mississippi and taken aboard when wanted.

Mr. Graham has made a curious calculation of what has been saved by the railway companies in signs, lumber and lettering of late years. Formerly two posts and a great plank was used at each crossing telling people to "Beware of the locomotive." Now a small board and one post answer the purpose and on the heard is awer the purpose, and on the board is a single word, "Danger." In this and other respects he figures that millions of feet of lumber and hundreds of miles of printing are saved, and says that when we learn European economy in material many kinds of manufacturing that must now be sustained by Government props will be self-sustaining and profitable.

A MINING INSTITUTE.

The Gentlemen Interested in the Industries to Meet in Pittsburg.

Next Friday the Western Pennsylvania Mining Institute will convene in the Court House for a two days' session. Coal operators, superintendents, mine foremen, fire bosses and all others interested in the advancement of the mining industries are in-vited. Many subjects of interest will be discussed. Among them are the following:

"The advantage of crank drills." "The difference between shaft and drift mines in the bituminous region." "The advantage of natural drainage in the bituminous region." "Will the use of the electric light in mines be conducive to the health and safety of the miner?" Aside bealth and safety of the miner?" Aside from these topics of general discussion the following papers will be read: "Elementary gases as found in mines," by Joseph W. Blower, of Columbus. "A practical exhibition in gas with safety lamps," by Augustus Stinner, of Wilkinsburg. Mine Inspector Adams, of Mercer, will read a paper on the joint resolution passed at the last session of the Legislature, under which the Mine Commission was created to amend the bituminous mining law. bealth and safety of the miner?" Aside amend the bituminous mining law.

No Trouble at the Homestead Mills. The report that the workmen of the Homestead mills were dissatisfied with the scale and ready to strike is without foundation. Both William Abbot, Chairman of Carnegie, Phipps & Co., and the Amalgamated Associations officials denied the report. They both said they were per-fectly willing to live up to the terms of their
